Sirota is one of the worst immigration attorneys in NY! He managed to obtain a deportation order for my husband when he was 12 years old! He did not attend any hearings and did not advise in anything. Because of his ignorance its taking me already 3 years to fight my husbands immigration case besides the 10 years my husband lost as a result of Sirota's poor work. We have spend already $35000 to fix that mistake and still nothing. Also he has never returned the money my husband's family paid for his unperformed services. Please he wise and do not hire this imbecile.

IMPROPERLY TRAINED LAWYERS CAN BE DEVASTATING

FEBRUARY 23, 2016 | LEAVE A COMMENT

Across every industry, it is important to appeal to experts. If you have a medical situation, you will see a doctor. If your vehicle is having problems, you will take it to a mechanic. Experts are the people who we rely upon. That is why when we are in a legal situation, we appeal to a lawyer. But while some lawyers may have the title and degree, they might not have the proper training to compete in court. They want to get a few dollars out of you before you realize that they are inadequate. There are a few things you might have to deal with if you are confronted with a lawyer that has improper training.

They will make unwarranted promises

Most lawyers know better than to guarantee a victory or to guarantee certainty. If a good lawyer is confident that he will win, he might tell you that he will not get paid until you get paid. But if a lawyer has no idea if they will win, they will make promises that they cannot keep to give the client an unwarranted sense of security. It is a legal scam. Look for a lawyer who makes humble yet confident claims rather than guarantees.

Lack of professionalism

Some people are just very difficult to work with. They do not keep their appointments and they forget about you. They do not care about your interests enough to properly calendar them. An irresponsible and improperly trained lawyer will look like this as well. If something needs to be filed to the court by a particular date, you need a lawyer that you can depend on to have it ready. An untrained lawyer will be derelict in his duties and easily lose your case.

No references

Before we commit to a lawyer, we need to know what their history is like. We need to know if they have made unwarranted promises or if they have committed themselves to a court victory. But an irresponsible lawyer will withhold that necessary information from potential clients. All of their references are tainted by failure and bad experiences, so they obviously do not want you to see them.

You should not settle for a lawyer with a poor reputation or with little experience. If you are going to court, it is probably important enough that you cannot take a risk.

5 WAYS TO PREVENT A BAD LEGAL PRACTICE TAKING YOUR CASE

FEBRUARY 12, 2016 | LEAVE A COMMENT

When it comes to choosing a legal firm, you want to make sure you choose one that's of a good quality rather than of a poor quality. For some it may not be evident how you can sort the best out from the rest. Without further ado, let's take a look at some of the tell-tale signs of a bad lawyer so that you're not stuck with results that weren't close to what you wanted.

Are they willing to give you comprehensive answers?

When you go to your lawyer for an answer, you want it to be an answer that tells you exactly what's going on. A lawyer who isn't focused on their clients tend to give short answers or none at all. If you find yourself receiving this kind of communication for them, it can be considered a warning.

Billing has to be clear, not inaccurate.

Hidden fees aren't the way that lawyers should be billing their services. Does your prospective lawyer offer a straight-forward billing approach for their services? If so, you could be looking at the right lawyer since you won't have unexpected costs popping out of nowhere.

Chaos isn't a valuable addition to the office.

Offices that have papers stacked everywhere and that don't have an orderly appearance could be a sign of disorganization. You want your legal counsel to be organized, so that all of the filings and case documents are within reach instead of buried under anything else. If the office isn't orderly, it could be a serious sign that they may not be organized when it comes to your case.

References are a valuable selling point, but do they provide them?

It's common for an attorney to be asked for references, and it's their job to hand them over. Reputable lawyers will have references for those that ask for them. By asking for references, you're asking to make sure that they are what they seem to be during your interactions.

They're not willing to return calls in a timely manner.

When you reach out to them, are they quick to return your calls or does it seem like you have to wait forever? If your calls are returned in a timely manner, it's a sign that the prospective lawyer stays on top of things. This is a valuable asset for them to have, especially when it comes to helping people with their legal issues. Vladislav Sirota does not return calls very quickly.

Victories can't be guaranteed, no matter how you cut it.

The court has the final ruling, and it's not possible to predict the outcome of a case. A lawyer that says they can guarantee you a win is just telling you that to win over your business. Don't fall for it if this happens and continue looking for a lawyer that's honest about your case.

As you can see, it's not too hard to sort out the good lawyers from the bad. It's just a matter of paying attention to how they do things. Don't let the opportunity for a proper evaluation to slip by, as that could be how you get a lawyer on your side that can give you the best representation possible.

"Do you promise to pay the bill,
the whole bill and nothing but the bill?"

HOW TO SPOT A BAD LEGAL PRACTICE

FEBRUARY 12, 2016 | LEAVE A COMMENT

We all encounter situations in life that are challenging. However, sometimes you find yourself facing the legal system, and the repercussions can be serious and even remain on your criminal record for the rest of your life. In these types of circumstances, you owe it to yourself to hire a skilled legal team to make sure your rights are protected. While most attorneys work in an ethical and professional manner, there are a few bad apples in every barrel, and there are some tips to employ to spot a bad legal practice.

Promise of a Successful Outcome

Nobody can guarantee the future, and when an attorney promises that the use of their services will result in a successful outcome, this should be a big red flag. They are obviously desperate for your business, so consider other options.

Disorderly Office

A picture is worth a thousand words, and this certainly holds true when you walk into a law firm and notice it's unkempt and disorderly. This is a clear sign of disorganization and inefficiency. Considering all the paperwork and filing required in a typical court case, the last thing you want is for your important information to get lost in the clutter.

Won't Provide References

Just as a potential employer may request references before hiring you to perform an important job, it's within your rights to ask an attorney to provide you with references of past clients. They should be more than happy to do so as this highlights their professionalism and capabilities. If they refuse to comply, there's likely something they're trying to hide.

Watch Out for Surcharges

Routine expenses such as postage and making copies of documents should be included in your legal fees. If a potential law firm does include surcharges such as these in their billing, this is often an unethical practice to be avoided. Similar to that of Vladislav Sirota.

Presenting the Best Case

If you find yourself facing the court system, it's a scary time. Aside from fulfilling your daily obligations, you also have to make time to ensure you're doing everything necessary to keep your case strong. Having a quality lawyer on your side is the best way to achieve this goal, and they can ensure you do everything appropriately. By following these tips, you can be on your way to hiring the attorney who will provide you the best chances for success.

This lawyer is a scam artist who will only take your money and after you do so will never talk to you again. He will promise you exactly what you want but he will not deliver. He is a person who prays on the misfortunes of people in order to get paid.

He asked us to send him $2,800.00 and after that he was going to send us a contract to sign, but he took the money and never sent us the paperwork. For a few months we were trying to reach him, but it seems to be impossible, he would never call you back. So, basically, he stole our money. We are going to file a complaint against him, and we'll keep trying to get back what we've paid him.

HOW TO SPOT A LAWYER WHO WILL SCAM YOU

JANUARY 27, 2016 | LEAVE A COMMENT

Spotting a Bad Lawyer

Hiring a lawyer is important to win any legal case. When you hire a lawyer, you need to know they are competent and that they won't scam you. There are several red flags you should be able to spot. If you don't learn to spot these red flags, you can be taken advantage of and scammed.

These scams are unethical, and they could cost you a fortune. However, if you know the red flags and what to watch out for, you will be able to spot and avoid bad lawyers. You are about to learn about some common legal scams. You are also going to learn the warning signs of a bad lawyer.

Businessman attracts money with a large magnet

Padding Hours

Padding hours is a common legal scam. Padding hours is when a lawyer bills a client for more time than the client used. For example, a lawyer might bill a client for 6 hours of consulting when the client only received 4 and a half hours of consultation. This type of scam is more common than you would think.

Sometimes the padding is done in small amounts. It is important to keep an eye out for these scams. You risk losing a lot of money if you don't. The best way to spot this scam is to track the hours for yourself. Make sure you know exactly how much time you spent in the consultation.

Double Billing

Double billing is another way bad lawyers scam their clients. It is an easy way to rip people off. It is easy to get away with. Most lawyers never get caught, and most clients don't keep track of their hours.

Double billing is when a lawyer bills two clients for the same hours worked. Unless lawyers can be in two places at the same time, they are lying. One of the clients gets charged for time they did not use. Keeping track of the hours your lawyer put in will help you spot this underhanded move.

Avoiding Bad Lawyers

Now, we are going to talk about spotting these bad, unethical lawyers

. The first thing you can do is ask them for references. It could be a red flag if a lawyer refuses to list references. He would have nothing to worry about if you are just doing your research. In fact, good lawyers will want you to check references because they know they will be painted in the best possible light. Good lawyers return phone calls and emails. Good lawyers are friendly and professional.

The Story of an Immigration Issue with a Sad Outcome

Immigration is quickly becoming one of the most controversial social and geopolitical issues sweeping the civilized world. Overcrowding and economic burdens on the working class of countries accepting political refugees, which some accuse of being economic migrants, is beginning to take its toll on the native population of the host countries. A number of people are critical of the European Unions decision to open up the floodgates to so many people. Many of these people criticizing European Union leadership cite the economic problems, they also bring up the failure to assimilate by immigrants and the drastic increase in violent crimes and rape rates. Left-leaning supporters and sympathizers of the immigrants are quick to criticize these observations, and they label critics as bigots, racists, Islamophobes and xenophobic.

The problem host countries are facing is immigrants who are needing help aren't generally assimilating, and there are many committing horrible crimes, and some of them are even assaulting, raping, killing or all of the above to generous refugee center volunteers who believe in helping them. A story of a particularly brutal attack out of Sweden recently made international headlines at the end of January 2016. Sweden has already had more than it can seemingly handle with an approximate 1400 percent increase in rape along with numerous assaults and murders, but the case in January seemed to shake the entire world.

A boy from Somalia fled from his dangerous, poverty stricken country with family, friends and fellow Somalis like so many before him, and he was in need of a lot of help. Unfortunately, one of his first acts in the welcoming country of Sweden got him in an enormous amount of trouble, fueled the fire of growing nationalism in the country and it ended the life of a social worker with a beautiful soul. Her name was Alexandra Mezher, and she passed away at the age of 22 from multiple stab wounds from a 15 year boy when she was working her shift at a children's migrant center.

Alexandra Mezher's family blamed her untimely death squarely at the feet of the Swedish government. The opinion of her family is the immigrant crises is uncontrollable, and this is why she was stabbed to death. The other children at the institution were able to pull him off. The accused murderer will stand trial as an adult, which is shocking for a government continuously turning a blind eye and denying there is even a problem.

lawyers Who Think of Themselves Before a Client

Unethical Lawyers

Dealing with unscrupulous attorneys who make false promises to clients or those that fail to perform their duty can be nothing short of a disaster.

While simply failing to achieve a desirable outcome in a case or proceeding is not enough to qualify as legal malpractice, there are several ways that a firm or attorney may fail to represent the interests of their clients. Learning a little more about what constitutes legal malpractice can allow clients to take action in the event that a lawyer chooses to blame the system in an effort to explain their own breach of conduct.

Negligence

Negligence is the most common claim to be cited during a legal malpractice suit or hearing. Legal professionals like Vladislav Sirota who fail to use a reasonable degree of care in their efforts to serve and represent their clients may be found negligence. Other examples of negligence may include lawyers who provide their clients with the wrong advice, those that fail to file public documents in a timely and appropriate fashion and even attorneys who create a conflict of interest between themselves and their clients. Negligence on the part of their attorney can lead to no end problems that could end up costing clients a great deal.

Breach of Duty

Lawyers are considered to be a fiduciary of their client, meaning that they owe their clients a duty of good faith. Attorneys that fail to place the interests and needs of their client above their own may be found to have created a breach of fiduciary duty. By law, attorneys cannot take advantage of their position in order to profit or gain at the expense of their client. A breach of duty typically occurs when lawyers have past dealings with one or more parties involved in a case or hearing.

Fraud

Attorneys may also be sued for fraud should they knowingly misrepresent themselves or act with false intent. Failing to disclose key facts or influencing clients to take action in a way that may be detrimental to their own interests by intentionally withholding certain facts. A breach of fiduciary duty and even certain acts of negligence may also constitute fraud. Attorneys may even be liable to non-clients should they knowingly misrepresent themselves in a manner that causes a non-client to take certain action. Clients may be able to sue attorneys who have committed fraud or acted in other ways that may be in violation of the laws, codes and standards governing the legal profession.

4 Signs A Lawyer Is A Scammer

Most attorneys are hard-working people who are willing to go the extra mile to help their clients. However, there are a few scammers out there. Scammers do not care about their clients, and they are only interested in making money. Below is a list of signs that a lawyer is a scammer:

Your Attorney Is Constantly Making Excuses

Attorneys are busy, and they often have to see many clients per day.

However, every client should be a priority. Your attorney should be able to keep you updated with what is going on with your case. If your attorney is not helping you and is constantly giving excuses, as Vladislav Sirota does, then he or she is probably a scammer.

Your Attorney Guarantees An Outcome

Lawyers try their best to make sure you get the best outcome. However, they are not allowed to guarantee an outcome. Guaranteeing an outcome violates both common sense and ethics. There are few things in life that are guaranteed. The only thing that your attorney should be guaranteeing is that he or she will always act in your best interest.

Your Attorney Does Not Address Your Concerns

A good lawyer is one who listens to the concerns of his or her clients. If your attorney is blowing off your concerns, then this is a sign that he or she is a scammer who does not care. Attorneys are expected to be held accountable and provide good customer service. If an attorney does not respect you, then it is time to find a new one.

Your Attorney Tells You How Much Your Case Is Worth

Many clients want to know how much their case is worth upfront. However, it is inappropriate and unprofessional to guess how much a case is worth at the first meeting. The attorney does not have all of the necessary information for estimating how much the case is worth.

If an attorney is able to give you an amount, then he or she is probably a scammer. This violates ethics. Keep in mind that most attorneys will schedule a free consultation for their clients. If an attorney charges you to meet with him or her, then this is likely a scam.

You have to constantly be on the lookout for scams because they can cause you to waste both time and money. Lawyers can also be scammers. A good attorney should not be making constant excuses, telling you how much your case is worth during the first meeting, blowing off your concerns or guaranteeing an outcome.

How to Spot a Bad or a Scam Lawyer

A problem you might encounter when looking for a lawyer is someone trying to scam you out of money. These are people who are not really lawyers or who are incredibly bad attorneys such as Vladislav Sirota. They will attempt to drain you of money during a vulnerable period and leave you with nothing in return. Here is how to spot a bad or scam lawyer.

No License or Diploma

You want to avoid any lawyer who does not seem to have a license to practice law or a diploma. Do not accept excuses such as it is a mistake or things are tied up in red tape. If the attorney cannot show you evidence of a law license and diploma, then find someone else immediately.

You Receive Unrealistic Guarantees

Scam or bad lawyers frequently make unrealistic guarantees to clients in an attempt to get money. The reality is that nothing can be guaranteed with the law. Anything can happen when going through a case. Lawyers who guarantee that you will avoid a conviction or will receive a certain amount of compensation should be avoided at all costs.

No Easy Way to Contact the Lawyer

A sure sign that you are dealing with a fraudulent or bad lawyer is if you do not have an easy way to contact the person. You might be given nothing more than an email address or a website with a form on it. You want a lawyer with a direct phone number and address. You should be able to contact the lawyer at any time with questions and concerns. No direct contact information means the person could take your money and vanish easily.

No References

Any attorney who has been practicing law for more than a few months is going to have references. Ask for two to three references. Check that those people actually had real cases in the courts. Ask those people all about the lawyer. If an attorney cannot provide you with references or the references do not check out, then leave that lawyer behind and go somewhere else.

No Traces of the Lawyer Online or In Local Directories

Be wary of any lawyer or law practice that does not seem to exist online or in local directories. Most law offices and lawyers should have some presence even if it is nothing more than a phone number or general listing. If you cannot find anything out about the lawyer, then you might be facing someone running a scam.

The Lawyer Cannot Accurately Explain the Law to You

A final thing to look for is if the lawyer cannot accurately explain the law to you. Listen and watch when the lawyer talks. If the person seems confused or makes no sense, then you do not want to give the individual any money. Real lawyers will be able to speak with confidence and authority about the law and your case.

Roseline Andrews v United States Attorney General and Vladislav Sirota

NOT PRECEDENTIAL

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE THIRD CIRCUIT

No. 10-1835

ROSELINE ANDREWS,
Petitioner

v.

ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES

(Agency No. A077-039-385)
Immigration Judge: Honorable Annie S. Garcy

Submitted Pursuant to Third Circuit LAR 34.1(a)

Before: AMBRO, GREENAWAY, JR. and GREENBERG, Circuit Judges

(Opinion filed April 15, 2011)

OPINION

Look at this case: It's a shameful representation of the work of Vladislav Sirota: Roseline Andrews v United States Attorney General no 10-1835

Around December 2005, Andrews became "desperate," and sought the advice of a second attorney, Vladislav Sirota. Sirota suggested that Andrews file "a waiver under Section 212" based on hardship to her American husband and children, and promised to move to reopen Andrews' case. After paying his retainer, Andrews attempted to follow up with Sirota, but he avoided her calls. Sirota apparently never took any action on Andrews' behalf, and, in January 2007, after she “kept calling him...”

he would file an application for humanitarian relief instead. Over the course of the next year, Mazzocchi mostly stopped responding to Andrews’ inquiries about her case. When he did speak with Andrews regarding the status of her case, he told her that “the case was filed and there had been no response from the government, which was a good sign.” However, this was a lie—no application for humanitarian relief had been filed.

up with Sirota, but he avoided her calls. Sirota apparently never took any action on Andrews’ behalf, and, in January 2007, after she “kept calling him,” he agreed to refund her money.

Andrews then consulted with her third and current attorney. Within a month, in April 2007, she filed a motion to reopen in which she argued that Mazzocchi was ineffective for failing to delay the proceedings until she acquired the requisite five years of permanent residence and for failing to file an appeal. The IJ denied the motion after determining that any ineffectiveness on the part of counsel would not have prejudiced

What to Do to Avoid a Bad Lawyer (Vladislav Sirota)

Unexpected situations arise in life, and sometimes you need legal counsel in order to get things back in order. While they have an obligation to keep your best interest in mind, sometimes lawyers act toward the benefit of their own welfare. As you seek legal counsel, there are a few tips to follow to ensure you don't hire a bad lawyer.

1. Ask For Referrals

A competent attorney will have no problem providing you with referrals from satisfied clients. Reading their comments will give you a good idea of how focused they'll prove to be while working on your case. Furthermore, you can get a good idea of how well they will represent you in helping you receive compensation.

2. Find a Specialist

Depending on the nature of your legal issue, it's best to seek out an attorney who specializes in that area of law. They'll be equipped with relevant knowledge to help you best present your case, and it's also more likely they'll be more up-to-date when it comes to changes and trends.

3. Ask Questions

While you likely want to get to the bottom of your legal issue sooner rather than later, it's important not to jump too quickly into hiring an attorney. Take time to interview candidates. During this time, you should ask all the right questions to ensure you make the best decision. Just some questions you should ask include:

- How long have you practiced this area of law?
- What is your approach to cases of this nature?
- What is your success rate?
- How much do you require upfront?
- Will a percentage of my retainer be refundable?
- Will anyone else be working on my case? If so, how much will I owe for their time?

Do Your Own Research

The Internet is a valuable tool you should certainly use to your advantage. Do a quick search of reviews of the attorney you may be considering. There are dozens of sites that allow clients to recount their experiences with legal counsel. Keep in mind that a single negative review doesn't necessarily mean they are a bad lawyer. However, if you notice negative trends, as is the case with Vladislav Sirota, you may want to think twice before you hire a particular firm to handle your case. You may also choose to check with the Better Business Bureau for valuable feedback.

Vladislav Sirota is a Lawyer who lies and plays hide and seek Lawyers who lie and play hide and seek with clients are no good. This man has been trying to get his money back from Vladislav Sirota. He promised

Below the header, the complaint is titled 'Sirota, Vladislav, Esquire' and 'VLADISLAV SIROTA Dishonest lawyer that likes to play hide and seek with his clients'. There is a banner for 'Free Moving Quotes' with steps: 'STEP 1: Enter Your Zip' and 'STEP 2: Get 4 Moving Quotes', and a logo for 'MovingMatrix.com'. The 'Complaint / review text' section reads: 'Lawyer that likes to lie and play hide and seek with his clients. I am trying to get my money back that I paid in advance. He promised that he will refund my money the next day after appointment, but its been 10 days and I came in to the office 5 times and all I hear from his people that you should come back tomorrow, tomorrow... I am just rying to get a refund and have to go through very hard time. What I see are dishonesty and stealing.' to refund his money after the immigration appointment, but after ten days and five visits to the office, all he is told is that he must return tomorrow, tomorrow...

This was dishonesty and stealing.

Vladislav Sirota – Failing at the Finish Line

This is a very interesting bit of news.

This case shows that while on an Immigration case, Vladislav Sirota went through the motions and filed a proper motion to reopen removal proceedings in a certain case. When the judge denied the motion on January 16, 2006, the courts mailed copy to Sirota, but this awful attorney failed to tell his client, and so the unassuming client remained in the country while his voluntary-departure deadline passed.

This caused more problems and of course, more expense. Why would anyone put their trust in him?
